

director development...

Being appointed as a Director of a limited company is a step that is often made without the responsibilities and duties that go with this prestigious position being fully considered by the individual.

There are various statutory and fiduciary duties that the Director must fulfil when taking up such an office.

We offer a series of workshops that highlight these responsibilities and also intend to give a concise grounding into the skills and knowledge needed to be an effective Company Director in an ever changing business environment.

The programme encompasses the following areas:

The responsibilities you have to both your company and the world at large.
An understanding of basic financial information and how to apply this to your business.

Provide a framework for you to take a commercial view of all aspects of your business.

The uptake on this service has been excellent and feedback from delegates has been extremely positive. In addition to this, we can obtain an element of grant funding to mitigate the financial cost to the organisation.
